Over the past 25 years, Burnaby has grown to be one of the most culturally diverse communities in the Canada.
Ideas for Residents

What’s one thing everyone in Burnaby can do to help newcomers? Just make them feel more welcome.

It’s really pretty simple, but we don’t do it enough. And for newcomers, a genuine welcome—at a school, workplace, really anywhere—makes all the difference. Here’s the scoop: Immigrants tell us Canadians are, overall, very polite and often very kind—but not necessarily all that welcoming. Even the most successful say, try as they will, they have yet to feel fully accepted in Canada.

The World in Burnaby Project Team connected with newcomers and longer-term residents through focus groups and print and on-line surveys. “Ways to Welcome” were collected from 200+ individuals, which resulted in our list of 102 tips—actions that almost anyone can take on.

Like to be the solution? With a little effort, and perhaps a bit of teamwork, all of them are easy and completely do-able. And they all add up to making Burnaby a more welcoming community.

Welcoming Tips

1. Throw a block party and get to know your neighbours! Theme it with your neighbour’s nationality to learn more about their cultural heritage.

   “One of my neighbours living on the same floor in our condo building knocked on the door and brought some sweets and said “Welcome to our building!””
   — A SURVEY RESPONSE

2. Take the time to learn a newcomer’s name, and the proper way to pronounce it.

3. Frequent a store run by an immigrant. You’re supporting local business and getting to know your community members!

4. Challenge a racist joke, generalization or stereotype.

5. Volunteer with a settlement organization.

6. Show a newcomer around town or help them find the services they need.

   “A boy told my son “don’t worry, I can help you.””
   — A SURVEY RESPONSE

7. Use your community connections to help find a newcomer a job.
8. Working or attending school with a newcomer? Take them out for coffee and make them feel welcome.

9. Learn cultural references! “Thumbs up” might not mean “OK” to everyone!

10. Start a group! A book club is a great way for everyone to improve language skills.

11. Hire a newcomer!
Show Your Respect, Kindness and Friendship

12. Initiate conversations with newcomers at playgrounds, schools and community centres.

13. Knock on a newcomer’s door to say welcome and bring a gift.

“When we first moved into our Coquitlam neighbourhood, a few neighbours came with freshly cut flowers and said “Welcome to our neighbourhood.”

— A SURVEY RESPONSE

15. Learn some common phrases in a newcomer’s language.

“A bus driver talked me in my language because his wife is Persian.”

— A SURVEY RESPONSE
16. Ask people about their country of origin. Start a conversation.

17. Help with directions. If you can, walk with them to show them the way.

18. Help a newcomer with rides to appointments or offer to babysit.

19. Help a newcomer with small things: help them shovel their driveway.

"When I was new in Canada, I was alone here with my children. One day when I was about to drive my children to their school, I noticed I had a flat tire and didn’t know how to fix it. My neighbour came out and kindly fixed it. At that time, I felt I am not alone here."

— A SURVEY RESPONSE

20. Offer a newcomer family flowers or vegetables from your garden.
Show Your Willingness to Help

21. Be a newcomer’s contact in case they need something. They might not have anyone.
